The Crawford AuSable High School Conservation classes under the direction of Coach Chuck Mires recently completed their Woodland Management practices by using the hand slit method of planting 17,000 Red Pine seedlings at three different locations in the area.

Class members are now appropriately routing signs to be placed on the sites to record their efforts and provide a means for future checks on growth and survival rates under the varying conditions. Funds received for the planting will be used to provide additional equipment for their classes.

4-H'ers Tour Natural Resources

By Willard Bosserman
County Extension Director

The fifth through seventh graders of the Crawford-AuSable School District toured natural resources Wednesday, May 12. Some 450 students visited Jeremy Jones' wildlife farm. His farm is located just north of Chase bridge. He is managing his farm to improve the wildlife habitat. He has a pond and a flooding to attract ducks and eye plantings to feed deer. He is managing one of his woodlots for timber, another for pulpwood.

Russell Lincoln, Department of Natural Resources, fish biologist explained stream bank protection at Burton's landing. Dave Olson, County Extension Director from Mio, and Arthur Thayer showed the group how to plant trees and gave each one of the 450 boys and girls experience in setting out a few red pine seedlings.

Ralph Anderson, Game Biologist for the Department of Natural Resources showed them a deer browse area at the west end of Richardson Road near North Down River Road. Anderson also showed where some cuttings had been made to supply deer food last winter.

William Tarr, Forester for the Department of Natural Resources met the groups at a burn out on Richardson Road. A forest fire had swept through the area three or four years ago. He pointed out the damage caused and emphasized care needed in preventing further fires.

A sack lunch was enjoyed at Kneff lake where Fred VanSimoneys demonstrated the capabilities of the "Beaver", the Department of Natural Resources' fire fighting plane.

All three grades were enrolled in the 4-H Forest Conservation project. The Cooperative Extension Service supplied printed educational material. The teachers supplied the teaching know how. The Department of Natural Resources supplied resource people.

The students benefited from the cooperative efforts of local schools, Michigan State University Extension Service and Department of Natural Resources.

LITTLE GIRL,

After graduation today, Martha dressed her little sister, Amy, in cap and gown and let her walk across the stage. Amy chortled all the way home. "I graduated, just like Martha."

Martha is a sweet big sister. She lets Amy watch while she gets ready for dates, makes clothes for her dolls and invents endless games designed to please a four-year-old. On the other hand, Amy adores the ground her "Marthy" walks on and listens to her advice before all others. It was Martha who straightened her out when she rebelled against church-going. "We go," said Martha, "not because we have to, but because we love God and want to be good."

Big moment

How glad Bob and I are that we have always gone to church and taken Martha with us! Love of God is an essential part of her life. Now she is helping us teach Amy a similar understanding and reverence.

Go to church, and take your child. Share with him the greatest wealth on earth.

Grayling, Michigan — Thursday, May 27, 1971

Down the corridors of time come the memory of brave men . . . the many, who, throughout our nation's history, have given their all, sacrificed their very lives for honor, home and country. Their acts, their courage and their beliefs are ever an inspiration.

Those servicemen of our community who, in more recent times, have fought and died in the cause of freedom are part of this noble company.

On Memorial Day, we reflect upon their deeds with deep respect and lasting gratitude. And proudly, we salute them.

With A Grain Of Salt

Nearly everyone knows what it is to pay interest on debt. Nearly every family makes interest-bearing payments on a car, on a home or some other item. No one escapes the necessity of paying interest when they borrow money. It is the wage that money earns for people who have savings to invest.

Even government pays interest on money it borrows from its citizens. At the close of the federal government's fiscal year last June 30, 1970, the federal government owed its citizens the incomprehensible sum of $383,427,640,000. The interest on that debt last year cost the federal government over $19 billion — more than the total expenses of the federal government for the first 117 years of our history. It was also more than the total federal budget for any single year until 1942. The next time someone tells you government debt means nothing because we owe it to ourselves, take it with a couple of grains of salt. Only the bankrupt fail to pay their obligations — including interest.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Patriotic For GM

By Jim Fitzgerald

Immediately upon learning how to help my country, I phoned my friend Larry, the car dealer.

"Listen Larry," I said, "that Oldsmobile you sold me is a mess. The wheels wobble, there's exhaust coming in through the air conditioner and the back seat vanity mirror is cracked in two places."

"Holy cow," Larry said, "I sold you that car seven years ago. This is the first time you've complained. How come you waited so long?"

"I'll tell you," I said. "I am going to write you a very nasty letter about this lousy car. I am going to write how I have been sick for seven years because of those exhaust fumes and that's why I haven't been able to complain until now. I am well enough to complain now only because the windshield caved in as I was driving to work this morning and the sudden burst of fresh air revived me and made me realize it was past time for me to write you a letter of complaint."

"You must be nuts," Larry said, getting nasty because he knows I've been holding hands with a Chevy dealer lately anyway. "Go ahead and write the letter. I'll just throw it in the basket."

"That's OK," I said, "but please don't tear it up first. Just crumple it angrily. I'll mail the letter this morning and I'll be around to pick through your trash tomorrow night."

"Why would you do that?" he asked.

"Because, after I press the wrinkles out of that letter, I intend to sell it back to you for $10," I explained.

"I wouldn't give you five cents for it," Larry snorted.

"That's no way for a GM man to talk," I said. "You'll never go higher in the organization with that kind of an attitude. Don't you realize that Ralph Nader would pay me $15 for that letter? And the U.S. Department of Transportation would probably go to $20. I am offering it to you first only because you are my friend."

"You've gotta be kidding," Larry said.

"Not for a minute," I said. "I am offering you a great opportunity to impress Mr. Roche and the other GM brass. Wait until they learn that you bought back a complaint letter in its original form, thus saving them the expense of having it micro-filmed first. It is that type of thinking that made GM the biggest corporation in the world."

"Why are you so good to me?" Larry asked.

"What is good for you is good for GM and what is good for GM is good for the United States. That's what Charlie Wilson said just before he opened a GM dealership in the Pentagon. I have never forgotten his inspiring words," I explained. "Selling you back my letter is the patriotic thing to do."

At this point, Larry hung up. But, before the phone clicked, I'm certain I heard a sob.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved mother, who passed away May 28, 1963: "Nine years ago Mom gave her soul into the hands of God, And we placed her body 'neath the warm green sod; We place flowers upon her grave, And say a silent prayer But it doesn't ease the loneliness Dear God, the hurts still there. So to you who still have mothers, Though she be old or young Give her respect and kindness And loads and loads of love. Get on your knees and thank God That she is with you still. For there is nothing on this earth, Her place can ever fill." The family of Mrs. Grace Biskner

CASTLE IN THE DESERT... Nestled in an inhospitable part of the Jordan Desert is this beautiful, but empty, Moslem castle. The desert is part of the West Bank of Jordan that is currently under Israel's control. The small mounds around the castle, which was photographed by W. Braun, are burial mounds which show that at one time this castle was occupied. There are hopes that someday part or all of this desert may be able to be reclaimed and used for agriculture.

Mid-Town Mayor

Almanack

On Black Politicians

By Richard L. Millman

When is a black man a black man, and when is he an individual?

That's a very elemental question, and a very important one, especially since our nation is still embroiled in the battle between the races--and the field of conflict seems to be spreading rather than narrowing, now stretching out to embrace Chicanos, and Indians, and you-name-it.

But should a man put his race first, or his total society first? It's evident that in all too many cases, race comes first.

This was spelled out quite directly in a recent interview with Robert Millender, prominent Detroit Negro attorney, credited with pushing the successful political campaigns of several Negro office holders, including U.S. Cong. John Conyers, Jr., Secretary of State Richard Austin, Judge George Crockett, and some others.

The interview in DETROIT MAGAZINE outlines Millender's concept of "the special role" that black politicians must play.

"In this given moment of time," Millender is quoted, "the black politician cannot say, 'I'm just a judge or a councilman or a congressman. He has to be a black judge, a black councilman, a black congressman. Recognizing this, he has a greater bond to fulfill his duties so the black community benefits from his acts. I hope in the future they'll be able to be just politicians, but that's not the case now."

It has been apparent that many black public officials have seemed to conduct their careers in keeping with the Millender philosophy; but seldom has it been stated so boldly from responsible quarters.

Upon analysis, this is a shocking approach for any public official to pursue, in my opinion.

It may very well be helping to prolong and even to heighten the turmoil between the races.

The political route to achieve an excellent society is much to be preferred to the violent route of anarchy and riots. Polarization and segmentation lead to hate and violence, when the direction should be the other way--toward a genuine community of public interest that outweighs any separate interest.

There always will be--and properly--a large amount of parochialism in an elected or appointed public official. The political system is built on the premise that the larger body--society itself--chooses representatives, and these representatives reflect the society.

But they must also lead the society as well as reflect it--they must temper their parochialism with a broadness of view and concept that takes into account the overall good of the total society.

Why should there be black judges and black congressmen, any more than white judges or white congressmen?

If a white public official would conduct his public duties at the expense of others, then there would be rioting in the streets--and there has been, partly for those reasons.

Yet this is precisely what Mr. Millender is advocating for the Negro officeholder--"to fulfill his duties so the black community benefits from his acts."

The argument against double standards for blacks and whites practices too long by too many Americans, has come full circle.

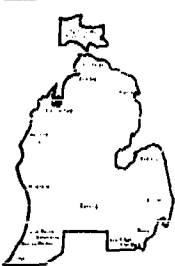

I would argue instead for a single standard, as spelled out by our founding fathers--fair and equal treatment for all, justice for all.

That's a high order, and a tough one to fill. Our nation has fallen short in many ways from these goals, and so have individuals who have assumed public trust.

But you can't reach any goal unless you try.

"The special role" of black politicians, in my opinion is not to serve blacks, but to serve all of us. After all, Negroes are people, too. And so are whites.

Jack Pine's Stump

A couple of weeks ago Jack Pine took the Bay City Times to task for printing an editorial as a news story. The "editorial" was highly critical of Grayling people who were working to solve the various problems which result from multiple use of the beautiful AuSable River. The article was read by our local State Representative, Lou Crampton, in Lansing who promptly wrote DNR Deputy Director Warren Shapton asking for answers and amplification of the various questions asked by Jack Pine. Now Shapton, who works for a department dependent on the Legislature for funds, couldn't exactly ignore Crampton's letter. And Lou Crampton, who is deeply concerned about problems in his district, sent Jack Pine a copy of the letter. Two and a half pages of single spaced typewriting which was a true masterpiece of avoiding the issue. I read it three times and still couldn't make much sense out of it. I really wish I could quote from it, but I can't. In the true political fashion, Shapton asked not to be quoted and said that enough statements had been made already. I can't really blame him. Quoting that letter wouldn't exactly help his cause — whatever it might be.

— JP —
Of course Mr. Shapton must have talked at some length with members of the Mersebrook Chapter of Trout Unlimited at one time. The Bay City Times article I believe originated from that Chapter of TU. The Times says it "came over the wires" from Flint. Supposedly it came over the UPI wires, but the article didn't say so. In fact it said that article was a "Special to the Times." I doubt that very much, since the same article appeared in a Saginaw paper too. I am also told it appeared in a Flint paper. A Times spokesman says that since this was a "news" story, the Times did not feel required to print the various letters written the paper objecting to the Times "special." Trying to trace the source of the article is like running around in the woods at midnight where someone keeps moving the trees. I guess when all is said and done we'll find that certain DNR people, working with the ultra-conservative elements of Trout Unlimited, are using the press to by-pass the local study groups, set up at DNR request, to press their one-sided view. And what is that view? From the looks of it, nothing would satisfy these people short of banning all canoes, canoeists and others who don't fit the narrow view of those who piously refer to themselves as "sportsmen".

— JP —
The Bay City Times, while not printing any of the letters of objection to the article, did do a fine feature Friday on the efforts of local people to upgrade the AuSable. I'll give them credit for that. It was a signed article by a staff writer and was well researched. It gave credit where credit was due, and it didn't reflect any one person's or group's viewpoint. Reading the Bay City Times can certainly keep one's interest up. I buy it just to see what the paper will say next about Grayling. I guess that's what they want — to sell papers. But there ought to be a better reason.

— JP —
The viewpoints of Jack Pine in this controversy have been called "radical" — even Communist. In fact, I've even been accused of being a member of the Chamber of Commerce! How awful! It must be a terrible sin to be concerned about the growth and economic development of Crawford County. If so, I've got a lot of mighty fine company. It's sort of like deciding whether or not you want to go to Heaven or Hell. If I had to spend Eternity with those who are convinced they are going to Heaven — it would be sheer hell, believe me.

Why A Will?

The difference between making a will and leaving no will is obvious. When a will is made, the most important consideration is the intent of the maker. The court bears this in mind throughout probate proceedings. When no will is made, the court acts in the traditional notion that after death every person desires his property to go to his closest relatives.

Tired of carry-outs?

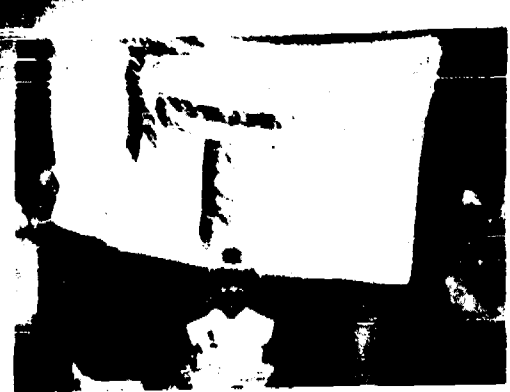

Here's what you need—a Gas incinerator. It takes all the bother out of garbage and trash disposal. And it does it without smoke, odor, noise or polluting the air you breathe.

A Gas incinerator gobbles up all the combustible things you wouldn't dare put in a garbage disposal and can't burn outside. It makes short work of bones, boxes and boots—in fact anything that's combustible. And it does the job conveniently and completely.

So put an end to your carry-out service. Promise yourself you'll see your appliance dealer about having a Gas incinerator installed in your home. Or, visit your Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showroom for all the particulars. And remember, there's more than enough Gas for all your appliances.

Thought For Food
For a versatile cream cheese sauce, melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Gradually stir in 1 1/2 cups milk (cook over medium heat), stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, cubed, continue stirring until cheese melts. Remove from heat; stir in 1 tablespoon chopped chives. Makes 1 1/2 cups sauce, ready to add to hot boiled potatoes, asparagus, boiled onions, broccoli or peas.
When freezing a combination main dish, freeze the food in a foil lined dish. After freezing, lift the food from the dish and wrap for the freezer. This leaves the casserole free for other uses and allows you to save space in the freezer for other food items.
For Hot Shot Soup combine 1 can each condensed consommé and bisque tomato soup with 1 1/2 cups water. Heat. Garnish serving with sour cream and snipped chives. Serves 4.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Memorial Day
God is not dead; neither is patriotism. The few I ud voices who proclaim otherwise are wasting their voices against the winds of truth and reason.
In the beginnings of Christianity, the swords of the tyrant failed to abort fulfillment of the promise that a Child born in Bethlehem would bring new hope to the world. This hope has endured, through the centuries, against fire and steel, and changing ideologies. It will remain.
When the founders of this nation saw fit to seek a new freedom, they gave birth to a national patriotism and gave words of a Constitution establishing a government "of the people, by the people, for the people." Since the first struggles of this infant nation there have been patriots sufficient to man the necessary defenses, to struggle for good, to fight oppression. The well shall not run dry.
We may live today in a world far from perfect, in a nation afflicted with too much apathy, too much disaffection. But, we are hopeful, and we are strong. There is a church on the corner and nearby Old Glory unfurls its colors to the sky.
